GMA allies to devote Holy Week to Cha-cha

Tell CBCP to respect 'people's initiative'

By Michael Lim Ubac and Leila B. Salaverria

PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-Arroyo's congressional allies yesterday warned Catholic Church leaders to stay away from politics and said lawmakers would spend their Lenten holidays campaigning for the shift to the parliamentary system.

House Majority Leader Prospero Nograles reacted sharply to criticism over the weekend by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines and constitutional expert Fr. Joaquin Bernas of the "people's initiative" as a mode for Charter change (Cha-cha).

P1B in benefits for war veterans released

By Tonette Orejas, PDI Central Luzon Desk, and Christine O. Avendaño

MT. SAMAT, PILAR, BATAAN—AT the Araw ng Kagitingan rites, President Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday announced the release of P1 billion to Filipino World War II veterans.

Ms Arroyo shared the news with some 3,000 veterans, their relatives and government officials gathered here to honor the heroism of Filipino soldiers during the war.

Like Pope, Rosales under shadow of predecessor

By Amando Doronila

ANALYSIS

A WEARY FLOTSAM OF 68 MILlion Filipino Catholics is cast adrift in a sea of political uncertainty in the search for direction from their religious leaders as they contemplate this week the Passion of Christ.

They have a new cardinal, Archbishop Gaudencio Rosales, who on March 24 was bestowed his red hat by Pope Benedict XVI at a consistory at the Vatican.

In succeeding the late Jaime Cardinal Sin as archbishop of Manila on Nov. 21, 2003, Rosales inherited the heavy legacy of the most politically influential and powerful Filipino prelate in the postwar history of the country.

There is a double irony in Rosales' induction. Both he and Pope Benedict XVI had assumed their high ecclesiastical offices under the shadow of two towering Church personalities—Cardinal Sin in the case of Rosales and Pope John Paul II in the case of Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger.

Why not make the Stations of the Cross among the ruins of colonial churches in North Luzon?

THE TRADITIONAL VISITA Iglesias during the Holy Week is a pilgrimage that imaginatively follows the footsteps of our Lord in His journey through the streets of Jerusalem to the hill of Golgotha. It allows the Catholic devotee to visit churches so as to participate in Christ's agony through the Stations of the Cross.

As there are 14 stations in the devotional, it would be ideal to visit 14 churches, although in my family, as far as I could remember, we visited only seven churches, making two stations per church.

Be that as it may, perhaps to make the Visita Iglesias a bit more challenging, a visit to ruined colonial churches would be a unique way of showing devotion and sacrifice. Definitely it would be quite instructive and memorable.

The journey chosen for this route is the north loop heading toward Cagayan Valley and down the Ilocos Region.

Toward Cagayan Valley, one can find the remains of the church of Pancian in [illegible], [illegible]. Built in the early 18th century by the Augustinian missionaries, it was reduced to rubble by the powerful earthquake of 1990. Pancian can be reached through a short distance from Manila-Cagayan Road. It is approximately 26 kilometers from San Jose City.

Second station is the church of Bagabag, built during the early 18th century by the Dominican missionaries. Only the brick belfry now stands. A modern church has been constructed where the original convent once stood.

Nothing much of the colonial church remains, but traces of it remain around the grounds of the new parish office. Bagabag can be reached via a short detour to Bagabag Road. From the junction, Bagabag is only roughly eight kilometers away. A feeder road back to Cagayan Valley Road is accessible from the north.

Third station is the spectacular Cabagan Viejo, now known as San Pablo, built by the Dominicans in 1700. The town once vied in importance and wealth with neighboring Tuguegarao and Tumauini in Isabela. It was abandoned when the rampaging waters of Rio Grande de Cagayan threatened the town; the people moved to the safer grounds of Cabagan Nuevo, today's Cabagan.

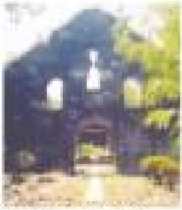

The ruins are impressive, with the church's carved stone walls and free-standing belfry still evident. San Pablo is along the national road toward Tuguegarao. Access to the church is through a short feeder road beside
